

LGS IN FOCUS • COMMUNITY AND REGIONAL PLANNING PROGRAM

New Program Allows More Efficient Information Sharing

The Local Government Services (LGS) Division of LCOG recently underwent a reorganization that, in part, was intended to more clearly support the way staff in the Natural Resource and Urban and Regional Planning programs operate. At the heart of this restructuring was the merger of these two programs. The new program, named the Community and Regional Planning Program (CARP), brings together 15 staff members whose skills include urban and regional planning, economic development, natural resource and telecommunication planning, and legal services.

The core of the CARP program consists of natural resource and land use planning services. The new program reflects the reality that CARP members often participate in projects that require the integration of land use planning skills and natural resource expertise. Joining these staff members in a common program allows for more efficient information sharing and project coordination. Closer integration of staff also provides for more efficient cross training and allows planning problems to be addressed from multiple perspectives and backgrounds.

Lane County Needs and Issues Inventory Prepared

by Cynthia van Zelm

With Lane Council of Governments' (LCOG) assistance, the Lane Economic Committee (LEC) prepared a list of recommended items to be considered for funding under the State's Needs and Issues Inventory. The Lane County Needs and Issues Inventory includes over 150 projects in the areas of infrastructure, facilities, and technical assistance. LCOG's Board of Directors will review this list at its December 13 meeting; subsequently, the list will be sent to the Oregon Economic and Community Development Department (OECDD). A January meeting of State and federal agencies will allow review of the projects to determine which may be eligible for funding.

Cities, counties, special districts, and unincorporated areas are the focus

“We have learned that our security and well-being are enhanced by our relationships and by our commitment to work together.”

As Always, We're in this Together

Over the years, I have used this column to highlight special activities of the organization or to share thoughts—perhaps bemusements—about the ebb and flow of public policy within this region. As I contemplate this Director's Desk, two, almost contradictory, notions run through my mind. First, it is clear that there is a great deal of positive work going on within and around your council of governments. It is a busy time, as the calendar year comes to an end and the staff works to advance this agency's programs and services and bears down to meet targets and objectives. At the same time, in many respects it seems that the only thing that is really going on is tied to world events that are far beyond our reach.

On the subject of security and the sense of well-being that all of us crave, let me offer a simplistic comment. Since the attacks of September 11, it feels like many important aspects of our world have changed. We have mourned the loss of life; we have felt pain and sympathy for those who suffer and grieve; and we have expressed gratitude for the selfless heroism demonstrated, both on that day and since. Events have also kindled in many of us a revived sense of patriotism. And, we now know the unsettled feeling of vulnerability—both personal and national—in new ways.

Although our community lies far from the events that dominate the evening news, we are very much a part of the historic drama that is being played out. In my view, it is a healthy thing that we are not detached spectators, but engaged participants. As peoples of a nation and of a region, we are linked to one another. Though viewpoints and opinions differ, participation is not optional. Yes, important aspects of our world have changed. But we understand that change is constant; and it is also true that we have always been linked to one another.

Here in this region, we can appreciate the ways in which we are linked as participating community members. There are constant reminders that decisions made over there have impacts over here. We have learned that our security and well-being are enhanced by our relationships and by our commitment to work together. The days of November and December in Oregon are shorter and wetter for all of us. Yet spring will come and, together, we will find wellness, healing, and prosperity.

To all members of the extended LCOG family, please have a safe and peaceful holiday season.

Springfield Evolves, Grows with Diverse Commercial and Recreational Opportunities

Briggs. Dorris. Hamlin. All are names of Springfield sites and facilities. They are also the names of the town's pioneers and area features—the town's history. Even Springfield was inspired by a local spring—in a field.

Since the 1849 arrival of its first settlers, Elias and Mary Briggs, Springfield has grown to become the second largest city in the southern Willamette Valley. The 1999 population of 52,945 was more than four times the 1950 population of 12,500. Springfield's location and surroundings offer urban resources, as well as recreational opportunities in the nearby mountains and at the coast. The city lies along the Willamette and McKenzie rivers, and its citizens and visitors enjoy water sports and activities, and Springfield's placement alongside Interstate 5 provides easy access to points north and south.

With its beginning as a lumber and farming community, Springfield's early products included timber, flour, and dairy products, as well as hops, walnuts, filberts, and bulbs and flowers. Until the mid-1900s, lumber was the main commodity and the downtown area was the center of commerce. Since that time, the commercial center has extended to the Gateway area, the city has developed a sports center, and the Glenwood area was added to the city's urban growth boundary area. In addition, Sony Disc Manufacturing and Shorewood Packaging came to the area in 1994. The result is a strong commercial presence throughout the city.

In addition to area recreational opportunities, the city offers cultural outlets. Citizens and visitors enjoy the Springfield Museum and Historic Interpretive Center, Washburne Historic District, Springfield Railroad Depot, Oregon Trail Mural, and the Dorris Ranch Living History Farm.

No longer a small community, Springfield offers a rich diversity of commercial and recreational opportunities for its citizens and visitors.

When she wraps up City Council business, Springfield Councilor and LCOG Board member Christine Lundberg most likely will not be found relaxing.

The mother of four keeps busy getting her kids to where they need to be; working as a community organizer, project manager, and grant writer in her home-based business; and fulfilling any one of her many civic-related obligations.

Elected to the Council in 1999, Christine's experience includes serving as a past member of the Springfield Filbert Festival Board, and several past and current council-related groups. In addition, she will soon serve on the Emerald Empire Arts Association Board and is currently on the Springfield/Marcola Family Resource Center's Board, the Skatepark Committee, and is the Secretary/Treasurer of Springfield Together.

Her interest in "serving people and the community" works well with her

His areas of expertise include land use and administrative law, telecommunications, and local government infrastructure development.

In addition to his work with member governments on land use and other matters, and as a hearings official, Milo devotes a major share of his time to several telecommunications projects. He is the lead staff for two local government consortia under contract with a private telecommunications provider to improve telecommunications services in the Lane, Klamath, Douglas, Coos, and Lincoln county area. He is also assisting the private provider to establish services in this area.

Comprehensive Economic Development Strategy Reviewed

by Cynthia van Zelm

On November 29, the Cascades West Economic Development District (CWEDD) Board held its annual dinner and meeting at Valley River Inn to review the Comprehensive Economic Development Strategy (CEDS). The Board is comprised of public and private sector representatives from the district's four counties, Linn, Benton, Lincoln, and Lane. The dinner was hosted by Lane Council of Governments' (LCOG).

The CEDS, which directs the strategic priorities for the Benton, Lane, Linn, and Lincoln county region in the economic and community development arena, also guides the economic and community development program for LCOG and Oregon Cascades West Council of Governments. It is also scheduled for consideration by the LCOG Board of Directors in December.

The evening included presentations from Oregon Employment Department

Economist Brian Rooney on the four-county area economy, and Oregon Economic and Community Development Department Business and Industry Manager Ron Fox, who spoke about Oregon's new Franchise Marketing Campaign. Mr. Rooney gave background on population, employment growth, and wage trends over the past ten years. He also provided a short-term analysis of the employment situation in the four counties.

The new Franchise Marketing Campaign is a partnership between the Oregon Economic and Community Development Department and the Oregon Economic Development Association. The Campaign is innovative in its approach, where investors, typically economic development organizations and cities, invest dollars into a campaign to promote their particular area. Mr. Fox shared advertisements that are promoting the advantages of doing business in Oregon.

of the Needs and Issues Inventory program. It continues the project prioritization process used from 1993-99 as a part of the Timber Initiative and has two purposes. First, it provides OECDD with a list of infrastructure, community facility, and community readiness projects that local jurisdictions hope to undertake over the next four to six years. The database developed from the Inventory will facilitate OECDD's long-term planning and budget development. In many cases, projects that are not on the Needs and Issues Inventory will not be funded by OECDD.

The program's second purpose is to provide federal and State agencies with prioritized lists from each county; these lists will be used as the first step in inviting applications for funding. The primary agencies involved in the review of these projects for funding are OECDD at the state level, and at the federal level, the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development, and the U.S. Forest Service. In addition, other agencies and private foundations are beginning to use the list for guidance on their funding decisions.

Growth of a Small City

by Megan Banks

Of all the cities in Lane County, which grew the fastest between 1990-2000? Was it Coburg? Dunes City? Florence? Cottage Grove? Try Creswell.

Between 1990 and 2000, Creswell grew to about 3,600 people—a 47 percent increase—and annexed over 200 acres into the city. This was more than double the state's growth of 20.4 percent and over three times Lane County's growth of 14.2 percent. Most of the annexations were east of Interstate 5, where after ten years of planning the Emerald Valley development is taking shape. Ray's supermarket and new houses are among the construction. In addition, the City recently took over jurisdiction of a portion of Dale Kuni Road.

West of Interstate 5, the Lane Council of Governments helped Creswell plan for the future of downtown. Ideas for improvements include new lighting, street trees, colored sidewalks, bicycle lanes, undergrounding of utilities, and entry signage for Oregon Avenue, Creswell's main street. The Creswell planning commission has also approved numerous smaller residential subdivisions.

Creswell's Front Street circa 1905

Other city activities included taking over management of the Creswell Municipal Airport. This is important because it is anticipated that Creswell's airport could eventually relieve congestion at the Eugene Airport. The City also completed a Buildable Lands Analysis, which analyzed the supply of buildable residential, commercial and industrial lands inside the city's urban growth boundary.

Lane Council of Governments Awarded Smart Development Grant

by Anita Yap

The Lane Council of Governments (LCOG) recently received a Smart Development Code Assistance Grant for the 2001-2003 biennium. Awarded by the Oregon Department of Transportation and Oregon Department of Land Conservation and Development, Transportation and Growth Management Program (TGM), this grant will allow LCOG to provide several small cities with technical assistance in planning.

LCOG will aid Junction City, Coburg, Dunes City, and Cottage Grove in their code audits, including a review of each city's ordinances and comprehensive plan to determine if they support Smart Development.

The Smart Development Program supports the efficient use of the existing transportation systems; alternative development patterns; and designs to reduce traffic congestion and distances traveled between home, work, shopping, and recreation. The program works with cities, lenders, and developers to reduce barriers to transportation-efficient development.

For more information, contact Anita Yap, LCOG, at (541) 682-3368.

LCOG's Appreciation Dinner Scheduled

The LCOG annual Appreciation Dinner will take place on Thursday, January 17, 2002, in the McKenzie Room of Eugene's Valley River Inn. The 6 p.m. social hour will feature displays of the agency's work during the past year and the 7 p.m. dinner and program will include the presentation of awards for outstanding contributions to regional cooperation.

Information about the dinner is available at www.lcog.org/appdinner.

January 2001 appointment to the LCOG Board. Christine "appreciates LCOG in terms of the many planning functions that have to occur...land use, public safety, senior and disabled services..." She is interested in these subjects and is excited to learn more about them through LCOG's work.

As a new member to the LCOG Board, Christine has much to offer as she "truly enjoys being a councilor and the feeling of contributing to the community." And she may even be able to share some fun stories from her personal life too: ask her about her Navy days or the times she rode a Harley Sportster.

Metropolitan Policy Committee Adopts Transportation Improvement Program

On November 8, 2001, the Metropolitan Policy Committee (MPC) adopted the Eugene-Springfield Area FY2002-2004 Transportation Improvement Program (TIP). Federal legislation requires that the Lane Council of Governments (LCOG), the Metropolitan Planning Organization for the Eugene-Springfield area, in cooperation with the state and transit operators, develop a TIP, which is updated and approved at least every two years. LCOG's Board of Directors delegated the responsibility of adopting the TIP to the MPC.

The TIP lists transportation improvements scheduled in the Eugene-Springfield metropolitan area during FY2002-2004. These projects are determined by the transportation needs identified in the area's long-range transportation plan, the Eugene-Springfield Metropolitan Area Transportation Plan (TransPlan).

Within the TIP is a three-year listing of anticipated expenditures for locally funded projects drawn from the capital improvement programs of Eugene, Springfield, Lane County, Lane Transit District, and the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT). In addition, the TIP lists projects for which application of specific federal funds will be made in the next three years. Priorities for the use of specific federal funds are established during TIP development. The total capital and operations expenditures during FY2002-2004 for Eugene, Springfield, Lane County, Lane Transit District, and ODOT are approximately $98,000,000.

For more information, contact Lee Shoemaker, LCOG, at (541) 682-4355.

LCOG Board to Consider Approval of Transportation Improvement Program Air Quality Conformity Determination

Federal and state legislation requires that the Lane Council of Governments (LCOG), in consultation with local, state, and federal agencies, make a conformity determination on the Eugene-Springfield Area FY2002-2004 Transportation Improvement Program (TIP). This conformity determination is required to secure funding for transportation projects in the area.

State and federal rules require that each TIP must comply with all conformity requirements in order to be found a conforming TIP. Each TIP must contain projects with reasonably sound financial commitment, meet the emissions budget, and meet the requirements for public comment.

LCOG's Transportation Planning Committee (TPC) is the designated committee for air quality conformity determination and as such will take the TPC's Draft Conformity Determination to the LCOG Board on December 13, 2001. A public hearing will be held that evening prior to Board approval.

LCOG Creates Resources Development Program

In November, Lane Council of Governments (LCOG) created the Resources Development Program. Led by Program Manager Steve Gordon, the program provides grant and contract development services to LCOG's Local Government and Regional Technical services divisions. Tasks include grant and contract identification, procurement, and administration, all of which will be supported by a soon-to-be developed program strategic plan.

This plan will be updated annually to secure new and alternative funding sources for LCOG programs and activities, which serve the needs of member jurisdictions. Upon request, the program will help coordinate grant projects and related budgets, and will assist LCOG staff in project development tasks. Also, the program will offer contract grant writing assistance to LCOG's members and other customers on an as-needed basis.

Board to be Presented with FY 2000-01 Financial Statements and Audit

Lane Council of Governments' staff recently concluded work on the agency's Annual Financial Statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001. Prepared in accordance with applicable statutes and regulations, the document conforms with recommended governmental financial reporting standards and "generally accepted accounting principles."

Independent auditors from the firm of Jones & Roth, P.C., certified public accountants, conducted a thorough examination of LCOG's financial statements for FY 2000-2001. This process confirmed that the agency's management of over $26 million during the past fiscal year was appropriate.

The LCOG Board will be presented the Statements at its December 13 meeting, where approval of the document is expected, thereby authorizing its submission to the State of Oregon, as required by law.

Lane Council of Governments' Board Scheduled to Approve TransPlan Amendments

by Lee Shoemaker

On June 28, 2001, the Lane Council of Governments' (LCOG) Board adopted the Eugene-Springfield Metropolitan Area Transportation Plan (TransPlan) subtitled Joint Adopting Officials Revisions to May 1999 Revised Draft TransPlan. At that time, it was understood that the subsequent adoption of TransPlan by the four local jurisdictions might result in some changes to the version adopted by the Board.

Since June 28, the cities of Eugene and Springfield, Lane Transit District, and Lane County adopted TransPlan. As a result of the local adoptions, there were a number of corrections and amendments to the version of TransPlan adopted by the LCOG Board. Adoption of amendments to TransPlan adopted by the Board in June is scheduled for the December 13, 2001 Board meeting.

For more information, contact Lee Shoemaker at (541) 682-4355.

LCOG is pleased to introduce Christine Puetz, resources development specialist in the new Resources Development Program. Christine comes to LCOG from a position as development director of FOOD for Lane County, a non-profit organization, where she organized fund-raising activities including grant writing and donor campaigns. Christine has other work experience as an organizational consultant, director of Corvallis Neighborhood Housing Services, community education coordinator for Eugene School District 4J, and development coordinator for a neighborhood investment corporation. Her educational background includes a Master of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Studies In Public Affairs at the University of Oregon.

LCOG welcomes Christine, who offers a new resource in developing funding opportunities that will serve LCOG's member agencies.

Christine may be reached at (541) 682-3063 or cpuetz@lane.cog.or.us.

HUD Grant Helps Form Community Among the Isolated

by Kathy Thomas

Over the past year, seniors and adults with disabilities who live in the McKenzie Village Housing Authority complex have accessed meals, home care, and case management assistance as a result of funding from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). These Services Assisting Independent Living (SAIL) are funded for three years by two HUD Resident Opportunities and Supportive Services grants.

Former Lane Council of Governments' Senior & Disabled Services' (S&DS) Medicaid case manager Karen Duran was recruited from retirement to serve as the McKenzie Village Outreach Worker.

"Karen has worked her wonders at the site. She has opened doors for the residents and connected them with a wide variety of additional services and benefits. Her presence has helped create a genuine sense of community among senior citizens and adults with disabilities who live in the Village," says Duran's S&DS supervisor Laurie Cracraft.

Statistics show that in her eight-hour-per-week job, Karen has significantly impacted the Village. She has:

- Served 730 meals,
- Had 816 personal contacts with clients,
- Made 423 phone calls to clients,
- Made 77 home visits, and
- Helped 17 clients receive 459 hours of home care.

The participants will gather for a special celebration on December 31 to recognize the success of the first year and to spend time with their new friends.

For more information, contact Laurie Cracraft at (541) 682-4374 or lcraacraft@lane.cog.or.us.

Counseling Services a Lifesaver for Seniors

"I don't know how I would have made it in the nursing home without counseling," stated an elderly client of Lane Council of Governments' Senior & Disabled Services (S&DS). Like many older persons, this individual's condition declined, requiring a move from an assisted living facility to a nursing home. The loss of friends and the familiar surroundings caused the client to become more dependent and depressed.

The counseling this client received is offered through the LaneCare Elder Outreach Project. Now in its third year, the program continues as a result of collaboration between S&DS, PeaceHealth, LaneCare, and several of its mental health providers. The program helps arrange for at-home counseling visits to Eugene, Springfield, and Cottage Grove clients who live at home or in a care facility and are otherwise unable to access mental health services due to physical limitations.

The focus of the collaboration is to ensure rapid communication, evaluation, consultation, and problem-solving efforts by

Medical Education Program Underway

Many of Lane Council of Governments' Senior & Disabled Services' (S&DS) clients rely on medications to maintain their health and quality of life. Unfortunately, not all clients use these medications safely and sometimes suffer severe health repercussions.

For this reason, the Lane Council of Governments' Senior & Disabled Services (S&DS) funds a program that teaches participants about the correct use of medication. S&DS recently chose the Oregon Medication Education Program (OMEP) to provide free medication education services to Lane County residents 60 years of age and over.

A series of seminars entitled You and Your Medications is scheduled around Lane County and will be led by OMEP-registered volunteer pharmacists. The two-part intervention series consists of a lecture on medication management followed by a roundtable discussion.

In addition to the seminars, S&DS arranged for a limited number of in-home pharmacist visits to homebound clients based on referrals from S&DS Medicaid case managers.

To find out seminar dates, call PeaceHealth's Center for Senior Health at (541) 687-6234. For information, contact Patti Little, S&DS, at (541) 682-4137, plittle@lane.cog.or.us.

S&DS Reaches out to Spanish-Speaking Residents

Diverse. It is often a word used to describe Eugene and its people. With diversity comes the extra effort necessary to effectively communicate with all. In an ongoing effort to do this, Lane Council of Governments' Senior & Disabled Services (S&DS) continues to reach out to the Spanish-speaking community.

S&DS' general information brochure is now offered in Spanish and is available at S&DS offices in Eugene, Springfield, Cottage Grove, and Florence, as well as in the Outreach offices in Junction City, Oakridge, and Veneta. Other community agencies, such as Centro Latino Americano, will have copies.

In addition, S&DS' Information & Referral telephone line, (541) 682-4038, has a Spanish-speaking staff member who can answer questions about service eligibility. Other members of the staff speak Spanish as well.

For more information, contact Sue Hauk, S&DS, at (541) 682-2483 or shauk@lane.cog.or.us.

a team of multi-disciplinary professionals. Results show that the project has successfully stabilized many frail elders whose condition would otherwise have deteriorated and required higher levels of care.

Last fiscal year, 49 people were referred to the program—32 women and 17 men—between the ages of 55-95. Of these, 26 were accepted for counseling.
